Linking Policy

Color|Ink Studio supports cross-linking on the Internet. We encourage our own sites and other sites on the Internet to link to and to summarize content that adds value for their users.

We follow certain guidelines when linking to other sites and expect the same consideration from third parties who wish to link to us. The principles embodied in these guidelines include proper attribution, respect for copyrights and trademarks, and permission for commercial use.

Links

You are welcome to link from another site to content on a Color|Ink Studio site. Links may include text content such as page or article titles and may be accompanied by brief summaries of the linked page or article. You may also use inline links. If space permits we prefer that you use the title of the page or article as the link, and we strongly encourage citation of the source site. There is no expiration on such links, and no permission is required.

For your convenience in regularly linking to our stories, selected Color|Ink Studio sites also offer RSS (Really Simple Syndication) feeds of our content.

Please do not:

- Attribute a link on your site to a Color|Ink Studio site and then link somewhere else.
- Write and link to a summary of Color|Ink Studio content which exceeds fair use guidelines.
- Frame the Color|Ink Studio page or article or otherwise present the content as your own.
- Use any images from Color|Ink Studio sites on your site.
- Use any of our logos without prior written permission.
